1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP '990 in view of Legge et al, U.S. Patent No. 4,781,967.

JP '990 discloses a wet paper transfer belt comprising an elastomer layer and a nonwoven layer wherein at least a portion of the nonwoven layer is exposed on the wet paper side of the wet paper transfer belt. See paragraph 0012. Either the elastomer layer or the nonwoven fiber layer can be hydrophobic. See paragraph 0018. When the elastomer is hydrophobic, the nonwoven layer is hydrophilic relative to the elastomer layer, so that the wet paper surface comprises the hydrophobic elastomer portions and the hydrophilic fiber portions. See example 3, where the elastomer resin comprises a silicone oil in order to render the elastomer hydrophobic and a nylon fiber layer which is hydrophilic relative to the hydrophobic elastomer, as well as paragraph 0020, which states that the wet paper web surface is between 10-90% hydrophobic. Page 6, paragraph 0027 of the instant specification teaches that nylon is a suitable material for forming the hydrophilic fiber. Thus, JP '990 teaches a wet paper transfer belt for use in the press part of a closed draw papermaking machine comprising a wet paper side layer wherein the wet paper side layer comprises an elastomer and a fiber body, at least a portion of the fiber layer is exposed on the surface of the elastomer layer, and the fiber layer may be a hydrophilic material such as nylon when the elastomer is hydrophobic, as shown, for example, in example 3 of JP '990. JP '990 differs from the claimed invention because it does not teach the particularly claimed fibers but instead employs nylon fibers. Legge et al discloses a papermaker press felt comprising a nonwoven layer. The nonwoven layer may comprise fibers such as polyamide, wool, cotton and vinyl polymer fibers. See col. 3, lines 17-41. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have employed the particular fibers such as wool, cotton or vinyl instead of the polyamide (nylon) fibers of JP '990, motivated by the teaching of Legge that such fibers were art recognized equivalents to the nylon fiber of JP '990. An express suggestion to substitute one equivalent component or process for another is not necessary to render such substitution obvious. In re Fout, 675 F.2d 297, 213 USPQ 532 (CCPA 1982).

3. Applicant's arguments have been fully considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
